

DALE GIBSON

Dale Gibson's journey into the world of rodeo began on a Quarter Horse ranch near Louisville, where he received his first pony at age four. By eight, he was mastering trick riding under his mother's guidance, eventually performing professionally at rodeos by age 11. Throughout high school in Indiana, he excelled in rodeo competitions, expanding his skills across the Midwest. Later, as a bull rider, he earned regional and national recognition while pursuing a Business Administration degree on a rodeo scholarship at Murray State University. A sense of humor and an appreciation of drama are important aspects in Gibson's life. His Hollywood journey began unexpectedly when he and fellow rodeo cowboys joined a film shoot in Mississippi. Spotted by a producer, he was invited to Los Angeles, where he arrived in 1985. His talents quickly gained notice, leading to prominent stunt roles in major productions. Marking a new chapter in his life, in 1997, he founded Gibson Ranch in Sunland, CA, with his wife Heather Burton, and embraced team roping. His commitment to community service includes chairing the "Ride For A Cure" event and serving on the Los Angeles Equine Advisory Committee. Gibson's passion lies in promoting the equestrian lifestyle in Los Angeles.
