These grounds were originally an Indian Reservation. In 1865, it was purchased by a group of men from Van Nuys, who formed a company for the raising of wheat. The ranch was, at the time, roughly nine thousand acres. The ranch house was built by Alfred Workman in 1869. The Paull family later purchased the ranch and lived here for over 20 years. They raised 13 children in this home.

In 1932, the ranch and its surrounding properties were donated to the City of Los Angeles.

This historical monument was badly damaged during the 1994 Northridge earthquake. In rebuilding this house the builders used its original redwood and Oregon pine wood materials. This house was named Shadow Ranch because of its great trees.

Come and be apart of history at Shadow Ranch Park!
